Guide

- 0-5 You may be experiencing the start of perimenopause. This refers to two to eight years of fluctuating hormones and related symptoms leading up to menopause. You should prepare for menopause by adopting a healthy lifestyle and understanding how these symptoms can be managed.
- 6-15 You may be experiencing symptoms associated with menopause transition. Your menstruation may have become more irregular or ceased. However, menopause symptoms do continue to be present in some women and these symptoms may cause discomfort. If you are uncertain, consult your healthcare professional to confirm that your symptoms are due to menopause. Natural products for menopause management made from botanical extracts are available.
- 16-44 You may be experiencing very severe symptoms that can be remedied. Consult a healthcare professional immediately to rule out other conditions, and to confirm whether your symptoms are due to menopause. Natural products can help in the management of menopausal symptoms.

Nutrafem is a natural botanical supplement that manages and offers relief for symptoms and discomforts associated with perimenopause or menopause.

During menopause, your body's hormone level decreases significantly. Unlike hormone replacement therapy which acts by adding external hormones to your body, Nutrafem works by assisting the body to use its own hormones more effectively. Thus your body gets what it only needs.

Clinically tested for safety and efficacy, Nutrafem is your natural choice for menopause relief.
